

The tales of hill's

In another world, know how definitely to be in the hills.

You know how those hills sound to me?

In the world, full of chaos and darkness the hills give me the most peaceful environment and they listen to me with too much patience and understanding. they never judge me and like other people they never break my trust towards them.

I am one of the most talkative person with them, sitting between the valleys of them it feels like, too much safer and secure. I know that they don't listen to me but i know, they feel what i tried to say and they know when i need a touch "they blow a calm air that touches the face and feels like someone is saying that,

"Why are you worrying if anyone is made for you they will never betray and they will understand your silency, and they will try to console you at that point where no one knows what is happening to you, they will understand and you'll feel like home with them".

Whenever i want to scream very loudly they hear and say, louder my friend let's make a vibe together by creating a melodious tune with remixing the chirping sound with dancing heart.

Whenever I hug them, they shade some leaves on me, in the season of rain they also shade some water droplets on my face and say "don't think much sahil, I am here".

We humans don't know how nature feels, when we ruin the lives of others, but nature knows how to console us, whenever I actually need someone... Hills know how to express love, affection and care for someone who is connected with them.

So guys, always try to make some friends or love someone without any benefits and hope.

Note: there will definitely be some grammatical mistakes..but time will also fix that.
